4 BUILDING-INTEGRATED PHOTOVOLTAICS: DISTRIBUTED ENERGY DEVELOPMENT FOR URBAN SUSTAINABILITY
by Owen Temby, Konstantinos Kapsis, Harris Berton, Daniel Rosenbloom, Geoffrey Gibson, Andreas Athienitis, and James Meadowcroft
Aesthetically pleasing and carbon neutral, building-integrated photovoltaics could help transform how electricity grids operate in urban areas for long-term, sustainable living.

18 THE HIDDEN ASTHMA EPIDEMIC IN IMMIGRANT SUBPOPULATIONS
by Laura Corlin and Doug Brugge
While there has been a steady increase in asthma rates across the entire U.S. population, there is a disproportionately higher percentage of cases among groups who live in poor housing conditions and in close proximity to air pollution sources. Among those most at risk are some immigrant subpopulations who are suffering from this social justice issue at an increasing rate.

28 CLIMATE CHANGE MITIGATION AS CATASTROPHIC RISK MANAGEMENT
by Simon Dietz
Economists are increasingly viewing climate change from a paradigm of catastrophic risk management, a strategy that they hope could help ensure the creation of a planetary-scale insurance policy.

CONTENTS

JANUARY 2015  VOLUME 18  ISSUE 8

COVER STORY

14 Make in India: What’s in for India Inc.
Prime Minister Narendra Modi’s campaign ‘Make in India’ promises jobs, growth and ‘aache din’ to the Indian corporates in 2015. With business sentiments soaring, will the campaign be able to live up to the expectations?

FEATURES

28 Reverse mentoring: a crucible for innovation
Shifting gears with reverse mentoring, several organizations have been able to not just bridge the cross-generational gaps but also break paradigms. Learning never stops. So it only makes sense for the senior lot to pause and learn a few tricks from their younger counterpart.

34 To fresh beginnings...
As we set sail for a New Year, we reminiscence of the year gone by, of hits and misses, of happier moments and not so happier moments, of days spent with our loved ones and away from them to honor our work commitments. It is time of the year, when we cross our hearts and resolve to do things we deeply believe in, work towards our goals and make a difference.

38 Training on Trial
In a hyper competitive market, Training departments are on trial to provide value. They must perform or perish.

42 Implementing CSR sustainability programs
More companies are prioritizing social and environmental projects that are connected with their core business, enabling them to not only use monetary resources to support such programs, but to leverage their expertise to generate longer-term benefits for society.

48 Overlooking biases: Tech firms hire women and minorities
Evidences prove that the corporate world has always been skewed when it came to hiring women and minorities, not to mention in leadership roles. Going beyond biases, global technology firms are upbeat about changing their hiring patterns and absorbing more women and minorities in to their workforce.

HR PRACTICE

50 Creating a herd of innovators
Godrej Group’s employee engagement program ‘Godrej Fellows Program’ is designed to create future leaders who can think out of box and make valuable contribution to the growth of the company.
CASE STUDY

56 Handling Employee Indiscipline

Despite the effort, even the best places to work many a time, have to deal with employee-related disciplinary issues from time to time. However, HR can minimize the impact of employee disciplinary issues by understanding the cause and knowing how to correct them.

PERSONA

64 Taking on the world with a smile!

Her life is a dream for every modern woman. A successful career, intellectual satisfaction and a loving family - she has it all. Subhashini Sriram, Director - HR, Unisys India has achieved success by not taking anything for granted and a steely perseverance that she has put in with her graceful attitude.
