

Dr. Mohammad Baydoun holds a Bachelor's Degree in Architecture, a Masters Degree of Architecture in Urban Design, an Executive Masters of Business Administration Degree, and a Doctorate of Business Administration from Grenoble Ecole De Management. Mohammad is a project manager in Millennium Development International s.a.l. in Beirut, Lebanon, a company that is specialized in managing large scale urban development projects. His multidisciplinary background combined with his experience allows him to participate in structuring complex development projects, authoring of development strategies and, through management and collaboration with consultants of diverse disciplines (technical and financial), to realize integrated business plans and commercial success of projects. Dr. Baydoun won a number of professional and academic awards, the most prominent of which are Saraya's Spirit to Serve Award that is awarded to distinguished employees for their dedication and outstanding performance, and Ghanem Al Shama' Price for the best graduation project.

For him, pursuing the Doctorate of Business Administration Degree from Grenoble Ecole De Management was a life changing experience on personal, professional and academic levels. Gaining the Doctor title was a boost for social status and self confidence, but most importantly, earning this high level academic degree developed his problem solving skills and conviction ability through improving his power of argumentation. This helped him to better encounter not only his professional challenges but also his personal ones. In addition, this doctoral degree helped him to boost his career as he was able to move upwards in the managerial ladder, after earning this degree. Furthermore, during and after his enrollment in the program, he was able to publish six articles, a chapter in a book and two books within less than two year. Additionally, he was invited to become a visiting research fellow in at the Management Science Laboratory of Athens University of Economics and Business and a supervisor in the DBA program of Grenoble Ecole de Management, after graduation. In summary, he believes that joining the Doctorate of Business Administration program in Grenoble Ecole De Management was one of the best decisions he made as the collected and potential rewards were worth the investment and the vested effort.